Keep track of business performance with the new Dashboard

Monitor important aspects of your sales operation with graphical gadgets such as sales pipeline, project status, or marketing campaigns.

Conduct efficient marketing campaigns with call lists

Execute calls to groups of existing or potential customers. Select exactly the contacts that you need to call, then write or import a call script. As the call proceeds, take notes directly in the script, then record "call complete" and set a follow-up flag for those contacts requiring additional actions, such as a brochure or personal visit.

Create new record types or completely customize existing ones

With the visual form designer in Outlook 2010 with Business Contact Manager, you can:

- Click and drag to create new fields, remove ones you don' t need, or rearrange fields on the form .
- Create and customize new or existing record types.
- Add or remove fields, so that each record reflects exactly what your business needs.
- Define entirely new record types, such as Vendor, Salesperson, or Employee, and then decide which fields each record type needs.
- Define relationships between records. Keep track of virtual teams, your customers' business partners, or their key influencers.

Create sophisticated marketing in-house to get your business noticed

Office 2010 puts you in the director's chair, enabling you to create dazzling digital content in PowerPoint 2010 that comes to life with cutting-edge audio/video capabilities and animation enhancements. Your business can cut costs by reducing the need for third-party multimedia tools and design agencies.

Be more productive by finding what you need faster

Office 2010 extends the toolbar throughout all applications, making it easier to find the commands you need. And the new Microsoft Office Backstage view (available in all applications except Communicator) gives your people quick access to important operations such as viewing document information, saving, printing, and sharing.

Use Office virtually anywhere and on virtually any device

With Office Web Apps, you can review and make minor edits to documents in Word, Excel, PowerPoint, and OneNote 2010 from any supported Internet Explorer, Firefox, or Safari browser. All of the changes are saved and appear exactly as you intended, so you can seamlessly move from a desktop to the Web, and vice versa.

Microsoft Office 2010 is one of the best productivity experiences across the PC, phone, and browser for what you depend on today and what you'll expect tomorrow. It helps you rise to the challenge of today's business environment without losing sight of what's needed for IT success.
